DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Miller (US. 4,420,161).

Miller discloses an apparatus for restricting axial leakage flow through the clearance between a rotating shaft and a seal stator and providing necessary damping to improve rotor stability comprising, the shaft having a stepped surface (e.g. stepped surface formed by 41 and surface adjacent the shaft), the surface having a plurality of sections of a first diameter (diameters 41, 30, 32, 50 and 52) and a plurality of sections of a second lesser diameter being interleaved and adjacent (e.g. figure 2 shows this), the seal stator (e.g. 20) having a plurality of damper sections (e.g. 37 on 16 and 40 and etc) and a plurality of labyrinth sections (e.g. 24-26 and 43-46), the sections of damping and labyrinth being interleaved and adjacent; the damper sections of the seal stator adjacent the shaft section of first diameter to provide damping; the labyrinth sections of the seal stator adjacent the shaft of second diameter to form a tortuous flow path for reducing seal leakage (figures 1-2).

The damper sections are slotted pocket segments (figure 3).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Miller in view of Von Pragenau (US. 4,545,586).

Miller discloses the invention substantially as claimed above but fails to disclose that the damper sections are honeycomb segments or hole pattern segments. Von Pragenau teaches to have a stationary member with damper section to have hole pattern segments or honeycomb segments (figure 1-2). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skilled in the art at the time of the invention to have the damper sections of Miller to be replaced by damper section of Von Pragenau, to reduce flow which provides better damping effect (column 2, lines 40-68 of Von Pragenau).

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Zhou et al, Ambrosch et al and Katsumata et al.
